DELIVERING FOR QUEENSLAND | Queensland Government

RTI Release

CONFIDENTIAL – Estimates Brief

To be shared with Arts Queensland for briefing the DDG

Background information on QPAC's proposal to wrap the BRISBANE sign for the 2026 Clancestry festival:

- QPAC planned to temporarily 'wrap' the BRISBANE sign at South Bank, using artwork by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artist Casey Coolwell Fisher. QPAC proposed this as part of its annual Clancestry festival (30 July-8 August 2026), extending the festival's exposure to include a popular gathering place for Brisbane locals and visitors.
- Enquiries began in January this year between QPAC and South Bank Corporation and QPAC progressed the proposal through South Bank Corporation's normal approvals process. Approval was formally received on 22 April.
- On 8 July QPAC's Chief Executive received an email from South Bank Corporation Chief Executive advising that, due to recent changes to South Bank Corporation's Board membership, South Bank Corporation was "no longer able to provide approval."

More questions:

- When is it due to be installed? - 26 July
- Has it been paid for yet? - invoices will be issued following installation
- Can it be publicly said that Energex paid for the sign? Energex is the event partner of our Clancestry festival and therefore enables the event budget which includes marketing collateral. Individual marketing components, collateral and signage are not singled out to be attributed to a particular sponsor.

Thanks

RTI Release

Hi Julie,

Please see attached the beautiful artwork proposed for the Brisbane sign re-skin for Clancestry festival.

This artwork is by Nunukul artist Casey Coolwell-Fisher - a design commissioned for the Clancestry hero artwork and festival design in 2022 and used for our Clancestry festivals ever since with a different colourway each year.

- South Bank Corporation (and all three signatories to the deed controlling the Brisbane sign) approved the re-skinning of the Brisbane sign with the Clancestry artwork for the duration of the festival from 27 July - 10 August. Approval received on 22 April.

- The Festival is held on the Cultural Forecourt with branded signage and wayfinding throughout the space that sits alongside the Brisbane sign.
- The Brisbane sign will provide even greater exposure for QPAC and its Clancestry Festival extending the festival design alongside and beyond the event space.
- The cost of re-skinning of the sign is a total of $15,170 including production costs and installation. This cost is covered within a festival budget enabled by generous corporate sponsorship of event partners Energex Queensland.
- South Bank Corporation will manage the installation of the signage through its usual contractors.

Please let me know if you have any more questions.

best,

kendall
